

Dr. Nektarios Karanikas, Associate Professor of Safety and Human Factors at the Aviation Academy of the Amsterdam University of Applied Sciences.

Nektarios studied a MSc in Human Factors and Safety Assessment in Aeronautics at Cranfield University (UK) and was awarded his doctorate in Safety and Quality Management from Middlesex University (UK).

Nektarios graduated from the Hellenic Air Force Academy as aeronautical engineer and worked for the Hellenic Air Force for 18 years as a military before he resigned the rank of Lt. Colonel in 2014. There, he served in various positions related to maintenance and quality management and accident investigation, and he was lecturer and instructor for safety and human factors courses.

Nektarios holds engineering, human factors, project management, and safety management professional qualifications and has been member of various European and international associations.