

Greg Marshall, Vice President Global Programs, Flight Safety Foundation

Greg took up his current position in September 2015. Prior to this, Greg was the Managing Director of the Foundation's Basic Aviation Risk Standard Program based at the Melbourne regional office.

Prior to joining the Foundation, Greg was the head of safety, risk and compliance and security for a major contract aviation company providing turnkey services to the resources sector, a major Australian airline and Government. His experience also includes executive management of a regional aviation business providing contract services to government and the resources sector utilizing a fleet of jet and turbo-prop aircraft.

Greg has qualifications and experience in air safety investigation, human factors and is a Safety and Lead Auditor. He holds an MBA from Adelaide University and is a graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors.